

7476 A

DEFENCE
OF LECTURERS.

Morris J. K

Instituenda sunt Lectiones quotidiana; Altera Mane, in Novo, vel Veteri Testamento; Altera Vesper, in Altero Testamento, cum Explanatione Vernacula. Hunc Ritus esse Antiquum, probat & Res, & Vocabulum. Luth. in Præf. ad Form. Miss. pro Ecc. Wittemb. Tom. II.

THE SECOND EDITION.

L O N D O N,

Printed for W. MEARS, at the Lamb without Temple-Bar. MDCCXXI.

A
DEFENCE

OF

LECTURES

delivered at the University of Cambridge, in the year 1831, by John Keble, Esq. of Eton College, and Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. By John Keble, Esq. of Eton College, and Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Second Edition. London: Printed by W. Mearns, at the Strand, 1832.

EDITION.

LONDON.

Printed for W. Mearns, at the Strand, 1832.
Temple Bar, London.

PREFACE.

Dispute having lately happen'd in a Public Company about the USEFULNESS of LECTURERS, and one of the Gentlemen sending me the following Letter a few Days after, occasion'd the Writing of this Treatise in Answer to it: And the Reason why it is Printed, is in Hopes it may do some good to the Cause of Religion in General, by taking off the unjust Prejudices which many have conceiv'd against the Frequency of our Preaching; and to the Cause of the Church of England in Particular, as a short Apology for Her Clergy and Charity-Schools.

I trust I have treated His Grace of CANTERBURY with the Deference due to His high Station, Character and Abilities; and said Nothing which can justly disoblige any Person.

PREFACE.

IF I have said more of my Brethren than some may like, let 'em consider the Necessity there is for saying it, in these Days of Wickedness, when so many Mercenary Pens are drawn against Them, sharpen'd by Hunger and Malice, and 'tis Fashionable to endeavour to make them the Filth of the World, and the Offscouring of all Things; tho' the Blood of our Best Nobility fills some of their Veins, the Blood of our Chief Gentry many of 'em, and a Liberal Education adorns 'em All.

I have regarded no Ornaments or Embellishments, but left naked Truth to shift for it self. I foresee the Quotations will pass over heavily; but sure Men are not always to Read for Pleasure, and Subjects must be taken as they can be handled, not as we would wish 'em to be. And now I offer up my Hearty Prayers to God, that what is here Publish'd may answer the Ends of its Publication.

(3)

A
D E F E N C E
O F
L E C T U R E R S.

March, 1721.

REVEREND SIR,

I O let you see I am not Wise in my own Conceit, I here send you the very Words of that Learned and Worthy Prelate, WILLIAM Lord Bishop of LINCOLN, in the Preface to his Commentary upon the Church-Catechism, directed to the Arch-Deacons and Clergy of that Diocess, in the Third Edition, Publish'd 1708.

“ How wise the Constitution of our Church “ in this Respect, as well as in its other Esta“ blishments, is, it would be needless for me “ to observe to you. The Reason of the Thing

“ it self sufficiently speaks it: For as by the “ Sermon in the Morning, those who are of “ Riper Years, and better Knowledge, in the “ Gospel of Christ, are edified and instructed; “ so by teaching, and expounding the Catechism, “ in the Afternoon, the Younger, and more Ig“ norant, (who are not yet capable of profit“ ing by Sermons) are inform’d and train’d “ up with such a Sort of Learning as is suitable “ to their Age and Capacities. And yet, alas!
 “ how has this prudent and useful Method been “ slighted by many, and neglected by more?
 “ And instead of these Catechetical Instituti- “ ons, a Second Sermon been introduc’d for “ the Afternoon; and a new Sort of Teachers “ set up, under as new a Character, of Le- “ cturers, to Preach it; and that (oftentimes) “ not so much to the real Benefit, as to the “ Fancies and Inclinations of those by whom “ they are to be paid for it. I cannot say that “ this is altogether contrary to our present Esta- “ blishment, because the last * Act of Unifor- “ mity has given Directions for the licensing, “ and allowing of them: But sure I am it is a “ manifest Encroachment upon our good Old “ Constitution, which knew no such Persons, “ nor made any Provision for them. And the, “ Result has been, that the Afternoon Sermon “ has almost quite thrown out the much better, “ and

* 13 CAR. II. C. iv. S. 19, &c.

of LECTURERS. 5

“ and more profitable Exercise of Catechizing; “ which has both the Laws of the Realm, and “ Canons of the Church, on its Side; whereas “ the other has neither: And therefore if the “ One must be allow’d, I think the Other, at “ least, should not be omitted.

“ AND in this I speak not only my own “ Sense, but the Judgment of those whose “ Opinions carry Authority, as well as Weight, “ with them. Such was that of * Arch-bishop “ Sheldon, in the Year 1672, who by the King’s “ Command requir’d his Suffragans “ To enforce “ the Execution of such Laws and Constituti- “ ons, as enabled them to enjoyn the Use, and “ Excercise, of our Church-Catechism: Of † “ Arch-bishop Sancroft, in the Year 1688, “ among whose seasonable and wise Articles, “ sent to his Bishops in a very Critical Jun- “ cture, the Fourth was this: ---- That “ they (the Clergy) diligently Catechize the “ Children, and Youth of their Parishes, (as “ the Rubric of the Common-Prayer-Book, “ and the Fifty-Ninth Canon enjoyn) and so “ prepare them to be brought in due Time to “ Confirmation, when there shall be Opportu- “ nity: And that they also, at the same Time, “ expound the Grounds of Religion, and Com- “ mon Christianity, in the Method of the Cate- “ chism,

B 3

* See his Letter of that Year to the Bishop of LONDON.

† See his Articles recommended to the Bishops, July 16. 1688.

“ chism, for the Instruction and Benefit of the “ whole Parish; teaching them what they are “ to Believe, and what to Do, and what “ to Pray for; and particularly, often and “ earnestly inculcating upon them the Im“ portance, and Obligation of their Baptismal “ Vows,

“ THIS was what that great, and good Prelate, “ thought necessary to recommend to the Clergy “ in the Time of our utmost Danger, and as the “ best Means to prevent the Growth of Pope- “ ry, then breaking in, like a Torrent upon us, “ on every Side. And when his late Majesty, “ of Glorious Memory, had freed us from that “ Fear, yet still He thought this Duty of so “ much Importance, as to give it a particular “ Place in his * Injunctions, set forth for the “ better Establishment of our Church in the “ Year 1694.

YOUR Answer to this, Sir, and what was farther urg'd against Lecturers, when we were lately together, will very much oblige,

SIR,

Your Humble Servant,

W. B.

* Injunctions, A. D. 1694, N. 14.

I thank

JULY, 1721.

I Thank my Good Friend for this Letter; but can't think He is any more concern'd in the Application of the Text he hints at, than my self, or any other Person in Company, when I spoke it: For 'twas not directed particularly to Him, but brought in as an Observation upon us All, when the Argument was over: And I take this Opportunity to assure him, that I never yet design'dly call'd His Wisdom in Question, or accus'd Him of Conceitedness.

THE Quotation you make, Sir, is very much to the Purpose, considering how the Dispute ran: But, before I come to examin it, I beg you will indulge my taking a short View of the whole Preface you have borrow'd it from, so far as it relates to the Point in Hand.

HIS Lordship observes, in the Former Part of this Preface, " That the * Lord Cromwel began the Reformation, with requiring Ministers to teach Parents and Masters, and, by them, their Children and Servants, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Command- B 4 " ments;

* See his Injunct. 1536. Regr. Cran. F. 97, & 99.

" ments; which was more than many of the " Clergy themselves, in those Days, were very " well able to expound to them. " [So that Catechizing was not in Fashion 184 Years ago.]
 " About Eleven Years after, (His Lordship tells " us) † King Edward the Sixth found it necessary to repeat the very same Order in His
 " Injunctions: That every Holy-Day, when there " was no Sermon, the Parsons and Vicars should,
 " after the Gospel, recite to their Parishioners,
 " the Pater-Noster, Creed, and Ten Commandments in English, to the Intent the People
 " might learn the same; exhorting all Parents " and Householders to teach their Children and " Servants the same. [Which shews Catechizing was not observ'd, and postpon'd to Sermons, 173 Years since.] " When the Service-Book
 " was compil'd about Two Years after, a Catechism
 " was inserted into it; and the * Curate
 " enjoyn'd, every Sixth Week, at the least, to " teach and declare the Catechism, according " to the Book of the same. But yet still this " Work continued in the same State; nor was " any Thing more done in it by Public Authority, till about Four Years after; when,
 " together with the Articles of Religion, another Catechism
 " was compos'd, and publish'd in Latin, and all School-Masters enjoyn'd
 " by the King's Command to instruct their " Scholars

† K. EDWARD VI. Injunct. 1547. * Bp. BURNET's Hist. of the Reform. Vol. II. Ap. p. 165.

of LECTURERS. 9

“ Scholars in it. And here the compleat Mo“ del of our Church-Catechism was first laid, “ a short Account of the Two Sacraments be“ ing added to the Creed, Lord's Prayer, and “ Ten Commandments. ” [This was done 167 Years past] “ A Stop was put to this Exercise in “ Queen Mary's Reign --- But when † Queen “ Elizabeth came to the Throne, she return'd “ to the same Order that Her Brother, King Ed- “ ward the VI. had establish'd. She requir'd “ the Parsons and Vicars, every Holy-Day, to “ recite the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and Ten “ Commandments in English, that their Pa- “ rishioners might both learn themselves, and “ teach their Children the same. And she en-“ joyn'd them every Holy-Day, and every Se- “ cond Sunday in the Year, to hear and in“ struct the Youth of their Parish, for Half an “ Hour at least, before Evening-Prayer, in these “ Three Points; and diligently to examin them, “ and teach them the Catechism set forth in “ the Book of Public Prayer. ” [This was 161 Years ago. And, what Obstruction could Lecturers have been hitherto to Catechizing?
 Or, how much Older is our Constitution, in This Respect, than 'tis in That of Lecturers? And how ignorant were, not only Children, but Pa- rents and Masters, even of the Creed, Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments, 'till Lecturers enlighten'd 'em?]

“ By the * Constitutions of 1571, [only 151 Years since] His Lordship informs us, “ That “ every Rector and Vicar was oblig’d, upon “ every Sunday, and Holy-Day, to spend Two “ Hours after Dinner in this Work--- [But, what is This to Lecturers, and Afternoon Sermons?
 The Rectors and Vicars may do so now, if they please.] “ This was re-inforc’d in the Synod of “ 1575, [147 Years ago,] and confirm’d, as the “ other before had been, by the Queen’s Au- “ thority: And when Arch-Bishop Whitgift “ understood that this profitable Exercise began, “ nevertheless, to be too much neglected both “ by the Ministers, and People; he earnestly re“ quir’d his Suffragans to give straight Charge “ to Both; and to see that the Children, and “ other Ignorant Persons, were duly instructed “ and examin’d in their Catechism, as by the “ Orders of the Church they ought to be. [So that even only 129 Years past, Catechizing was hardly observ’d, and does not appear to be enjoynd by any Act of Parliament.]

† “ THIS Matter was settled again by the “ Canons of 1604, [only 116 Years since] “ and severe Canonical Penalties decreed against “ such Ministers, upon Complaint of Neglect “ in This Particular. But upon the last || Revisi“ on

* Spar. Col. p. 233.

† Can. 59.

1 1661. See the Rubric before the Church-Catechism.

of LECTURERS. II

“ on of the Book of Common-Prayer, [only 59 Years ago, when all Lectures were as much in Vogue as they are now, and when Catechizing was first establish’d effectually, and by Act of Parliament,] “ There is some Change “ made as to the Time when this Office is to “ be perform’d: For whereas before the Curate “ of every Parish was directed to instruct and “ examine the Children of his Parish before “ Evening-Prayer began; it is now appointed, “ to be done in Time of Divine Service, immediately after the Second Lesson--- But still, “ as to the Substance of the Duty, it remains “ as it did.

AND, if so, let the Ministers and People answer for the Neglect of This Duty, where it’s neglected; the Lecturers being out of the Case. ’Tis certain They did not hinder Catechizing much Before this Rubrick was made; and as certain, that the Enactors of it did not think They would hinder it for the Future; otherwise, They ought either to have laid Lecturers aside, or enjoin’d Catechizing at some other Hour. From All which it appears, that the real Practice of Catechizing is no Older a Branch of our Constitution, than Lecturers; and that the one was never effectually carry’d on, ’till after the Other was establish’d. For these Reasons, and no Other, I have made the foregoing Remarks; and not with the least View of depreciating ating or discouraging the excellent Institution of Catechizing.

AND, that Both these Customs are consistent with each other, and useful, His Lordship Himself is pleas'd to own, in the very next Period to the Quotation you have made from Him ---
 " Our Present Most Reverend Metropolitan, in " His Circular Letter, 1695, thus prudently re" concil'd the Discharge of This Duty, with the " Manners and Humours of the Times; by di" recting his Suffragans to recommend it to " their Clergy, since they must Preach, (after " having examin'd the Children in their Catechism, as the Rubrick requires,) " to Preach in " the Afternoon upon Catechetical Heads ;
 " both that the People may be the better root" ed and grounded in the Faith, and also kept " from Other Assemblies.

I come now to your Favourite Passage, Sir: But, shall give you the late Dr. Edwards's Thoughts upon it, (tho' I think them too rough and unmannerly,) as express'd in the Beginning of his Preacher, before I offer my own.---" There are " those (says he) who would have Catechizing
 " exclude all Sermons, and accordingly they " so extol and advance the One, as to " bring the Other into Disrepute: Whereas " the true Way is to maintain and keep up the " Credit of Both: The One being necessary for " those of younger Years, and the Other for " such

of LECTURERS. 13

“ such as are of some Maturity. He goes on ---- “ I confess I wonder’d to meet with such a Pas“ sage as This in a * Learned Writer of our “ Church: “I am confident, saith he, that would “ all Sorts of Persons but duly attend upon “ these Instructions (i.e. Catechetical Exercises “ which he before mention’d) they would reap “ a more substantial Benefit by them than from “ those other Exercises which have, I know not “ how, so universally crept into the Place of them.
 “ One would not have imagin’d that a Person of “ His Character should venture to utter such un- “ advised Words, for they can be thought to be “ no less, seeing they cast such a Contempt upon “ those Religious Exercises, viz. Sermons, which “ are so constantly Preach’d not only by his “ Brethren, but by himself, and are duly at“ tended upon by Understanding and Pious “ Christians. If Sermons be crept into the Place “ of Catechizing, it is by the Allowance of “ the Governors of the Church, and therefore “ this Worthy Writer could not truly say, he “ knew not how. But if he was resolv’d to say “ any Thing of this Matter, he might have said “ this with Truth and Reason, that Catechizing “ and-Pulpit-Discourses have their different Use “ and Place, and so are consistent; and there“ fore ’tis unreasonable and absur’d that One “ should juggle out the Other.

* Dr. Wake’s Pref. to his Commen. on the Church-Catechism.

I told you above, Sir, that your Quotation was very pertinent; but think it should not immediately affect the Lecturers of this Town: Because, when His Lordship wrote the said Preface to His Arch-Deacons and Clergy, he was Bishop of Lincoln, and gave it as Advice to the Clergy of that Dioceſe. And, if ſo, His Lordſhip had no great Occaſion to find Fault with Lecturers, there being ſo few in that whole County, and in all the Counties under His large Epifcopal Care. And as little Reason was there to diſcourage Sermons by the Incumbents in Afternoons; ſince ſo very few Churches in the Country have 'em, or indeed ſo much as Prayers. If we therefore take His Lordſhip, as Writing to His Own Clergy, one would imagine His Meaning to be, First, A kind Apology to the People, for the Clergy's not Preaching twice on Sunday's, which moſt Pariſhes very eagerly covet: And, Secondly, A modeſt Inſinuation to the Clergy, that they ought to read Prayers and Catechize, at leaſt, on Sundays in the Afternoon.

BUT, Sir, if you conceive His Lordſhip intended this Paragraph as a Wipe upon the London-Lecturers, as you probably do by ſending it thus to me, I ſhall beg Leave to obſerve, that the Whole of His Lordſhip's Complaints againſt 'em ſeems to be compriz'd under Three Heads, which I ſhall endeavour to Answer.

AND

of LECTURERS. 15

AND the First is, “ That a Second Sermon, “ introduc’d for the Afternoon, and a new Sort “ of Teachers set up, under as new a Character, “ of Lecturers, to Preach it, is a manifest En“ croachment upon our good Old Constitution, “ which knew no Such Persons, nor made any “ Provision for Them.

Secondly, “ That the Result has been, that “ the Afternoon Sermon has almost quite thrown “ out the much better, and more profitable Ex“ ercise, of Catechizing; which has both the “ Laws of the Realm, and the Canons of “ the Church, on its Side; whereas the other has “ neither.

AND, Thirdly, “ That these new Teachers “ and Lecturers Preach (oftentimes) not so much “ to the real Benefit, as to the Fancies and Incl-“ nations of Those by whom They are to be paid “ for it.

WHAT His Lordship means, Sir, in His First Complaint, by our good Old Constitution, by inveighing against an Encroachment upon it, and saying Lecturers have neither the Laws of the Realm, nor the Canons of the Church, on Their Side, I cannot imagine; since He acknowledges, in the same Section, “ That he cannot say that Le- “ cturers are altogether contrary to our Present E- “ stablishment, because the last * Act of Uniformity

* 13. Car. 11. Cap. IV. S. 19, &c.

“ has given Directions for the Licensing, and “ Allowing of them. Are all new Acts of Parliament then Encroachments upon our Old Constitution? Is not such an Act a Law of our Realm? If the Law of the Land obliges Bishops to Allow and License Lecturers, what better Establishment can they have, except the making a legal Provision for 'em, which 'tis their Misfortune yet to want? But sure their Misfortune ought not to be imputed to 'em as their Crime!

I have already shewn, Sir, and from His Lordship's own Words, that the real Practice of Catechizing is no Older a Branch of our Constitution than Lecturers, they being Both establish'd by Law together in 1660. But, tho' I date the Commencement of Lectures so low, yet many of 'em are much Ancienter, and Older than our Constitution it self in this Respect. I grant, that most of the Lectures in this City took their Rise in the last Century: Yet the Evening-Lecture on Friday, at St. Michael-Royal, was founded and endow'd in 1589; as were also Three Lecture-Sermons at St. Michael-Cornhill 300 Years ago, Two of which to be Preach'd on Sundays after Evening-Prayers, and the Third on Christmas-Day at the same Hour. I forbear several Other Instances, because the very First of the Canons, made in the First Year of the Reign of King James I. 1603, mentions Lecturers more than once; and the Learned
 Dr.

of LECTURERS. 17

Dr. Gibson tells us in his Codex, " That this
" Canon is taken from the Injunctions of Henry " VIII. publish'd in 1536.

So that these New Teachers, Sir, are not of so Modern a Date in this Town, as perhaps you took them to be; and, if you trace them to the Original, they will appear to be no Younger than Christianity it self. For no Employment of the Clergy being of more general Use than Preaching, our Saviour places it first in His Commission to the Apostles, and sends 'em forth to Preach, and not to Pray, as the Ordination of Ministers now runs. And, as Christ and His Apostles took all Opportunities of Preaching, and gave themselves continually to the Ministry of the Word: So St. Chrysostom, St. Austin, St.
Ambrose, St. Origen, St. Basil, and other famous Lights of the Church, Preach'd not only Twice upon the Lord's-Day, but on other Days of the Week, and often, for many Days together, especially in Lent, (in Imitation of which our Lent- Preachers are appointed) as appears from their Sermons, and other Writers. They had stated Sermons on Thursdays and Saturdays in the Churches of Alexandria, which were set up by Origen. St.
Chrysostom intimates, that he Preach'd Thrice a Week, defends and applauds the Custom of Preaching on Sundays in the Afternoon as useful and necessary, and there are many Reproofs extant in his Afternoon Tractates and Homilies to People for not frequenting them. Bishops then C Preach'd

Preach'd constantly, and were enjoyn'd so to do: Nay, possibly, every Day, as well as Communicated. At first, Preaching was reserv'd as a Peculiar of the Bishops, especially in Cathedral-Churches: And so both the Latin and Greek Fathers made Comments and Sermons Twice every Sunday. But this Function was very early requir'd of Presbyters; and, in Cities, and greater Churches, they Preach'd Forenoon and Afternoon, and seldom an Holy-Day past without a Sermon, which Custom our Universities and Cathedrals now copy. This was the Practice of the Christian Church in the purest Times.

Y E T Learning falling with the Roman Empire, and perfectly decaying in the Sixth Century among the Gauls, there was little or no Preaching in the Western Church for 500 Years together, as Surius tells us: Upon which, such Ignorance and Irregularities ensu'd, that Preaching was set up in the Country-Parishes in the French Church, and an Order made for it in the Council of Vaison. But still, as Popish Mass prevail'd, this Exercise grew out of Date: And what Stupidity and Wickedness reign'd in the Tenth Age, Bellarmin and Baronius acquaint us; and therefore the Council of Trullo made a Canon to promote Daily Preaching. But, for all this, it was almost extinct before the Reformation; and, where 'twas us'd, fabulous and romantick Stories were the chief Subjects of Preachers, chers, of which Erasmus, and Faber, and Hottinger, and many other Learned Men, have made too just Complaints: Nay, there are no Sermons of latter Ages, before the Dawning of the Reformation, worth Reading; and the best in Antiquity would hardly do now. In such gross Darkness and Error were we! And Ignorance is the natural Consequence of Want of Preaching, as may be seen now in the vast Kingdom of Russia, where they have Sermons but Twice a Year.

of LECTURERS. 19

BUT the Reformation began with Frequency of Preaching, which vastly furthered the Protestant Cause. Martin Luther, who broke the Ice, was a constant Preacher, and far from thinking Afternoon Sermons Unnecessary, or Novel, as his own Sermons shew: And he declares his Thoughts, in this Case, to Nicolas Hausman, a German Bishop, and a Friend to the Reformation, as express'd in our Title-Page. And are not the Arms which got us the Victory still fit for our Defence? Are not these Authorities of the Fathers, and of this great Reformer, sufficient to convince the World, that Preaching Fore and After Noon is a Practice much older than the English Puritans? So that Afternoon Sermons are not only Ancient, but Regular, and according to the Order of our present Church. We find Luther Preach'd Twice on sundry Holy-Days; and the Rubrick after the Nicene Creed supposes the Intervention of a Sermon, or Homily, every Holy-Day. -- And where is the Inconveniency, or Irregularity, of all this?

THERE is the same Reason for frequent Sermons now -- And therefore the Act of Uniformity says, Car. 11. 14. " That the Mercy, Favour, and Blessing of Almighty God, is in " no wise so readily and plentifully poured, as " by Common-Prayer, due using of the Sacraments, and often Preaching of the Gospel, " with Devotion of the Hearers. And, God be praised; so great is the Company of Preachers among us, that no Nation abounds more in this Blessing than Ourselves. So that, I may say, the State of the Present Church, in this Respect, is happier than that of the Ancient Church : And I hope the Scarcity of Preaching before the Reformation, is what neither we, nor our Children, shall ever feel!

HIS Lordship was very well acquainted with all this: And therefore I conceive, Sir, that He was far from intending to reflect upon the Frequency of Preaching in the Primitive Church, or in our Own now; but that He alludes to those Lectures, which were first set up in the Days of Anarchy and Violence, by cruel and unreasonable Men, to Preach against the Court, and had the greatest Treasons, in Nomine Domini, hatch'd at them. A * Noble Author tells us, " That Mr.

* Clar. Hist. V. I. p. 199, and 203.

“ Mr. Henry Burton was a Minister and Lecturer of London, after he had been Closet-Keeper to King Charles I. when Prince of Wales; upon what base Motives he turn'd Lecturer, and how scandalously he behav'd himself afterwards: But was that the Fault of the Lecturer, or of the Man? Or, are Lecturers to be more blam'd for this single Instance, than Ministers are, “ Who were so over-run with Treason and Rebellion, that they presented a Declaration, Sign'd by several Hundreds of the Ministers of London and the Countries adjacent, to the House of Commons, against the whole Government of the Church: The same Incomparable Historian farther acquaints us, * “ That St. Antholins was a Place in those Times made famous by some Seditious Lecturer, when the Scottish Commissioners came to London, and that That Church was assign'd to them for their Devotions: But, since Henderson, and some of their own Chaplains, still Preach'd there afterwards, and on Sundays from Morning till Night, (tho' the whole Service in the Primitive Church lasted not above two Hours, as St. Chrysostom often declares in his Sermons) let them answer for their own Ribaldry and Nonsense, and the Tumults and Riots they occasion'd: For sure the English are not to answer for that! And, shall a Second Instance of a vile Lecturer, without a Name, cast a blacker Shade

C 3

upon

upon all Lecturers now, than the Base and Infamous Practices of Hundreds of Rectors, whose Names are not yet forgotten, does upon Rectors? Yet, if these Men ran in His Lordship's Mind when He writ this Passage, and fir'd His pious Breast with Resentment, I confess He had just Reason to think 'em strange Teachers, unknown to our good old Constitution, and such as deserved no other Provision to be made for 'em, than That which I care not to name.

BUT the Second Complaint against Lecturers is, " That the Result has been, that the Afternoon Sermon has almost quite thrown out the much better, and more profitable Exercise, of Catechizing; which has both the Laws of the Realm, and the Canons of the Church, on its Side; whereas the other has neither.

THIS Charge against Lecturers, with Regard to the Kingdom in general, might well have been spar'd; since they are so far from having thrown out the much better Exercise of Catechizing, that there is scarce one in an Hundred Churches in this Nation which has Afternoon-Sermons: So that the Neglect of Catechizing cannot lie at the Lecturers Doors.

HIS Lordship very well observes, Sir, " That the Constitution of our Church, in this Respect, is wise: For as by the Sermon in the Morning, those who are of riper Years, and better “ better Knowledge, in the Gospel of Christ, “ are Edifyed and Instructed; so by teaching, and “ expounding the Catechism, in the Afternoon, “ the Younger, and more Ignorant, (who are “ not yet capable of profiting by Sermons) are “ inform’d and train’d up with such a Sort of “ Learning as is suitable to their Age and Ca“ pacities. And yet, alas! how has this prudent “ and useful Method been slighted by many, and “ neglected by more?

I am as sorry as His Lordship can be, that Catechizing is so much slighted and neglected; but can’t think Afternoon-Sermons are the Occasion of it in the Country, because there is hardly any such Thing throughout the whole Nation. I heartily wish that His Lordship’s Advice could so far prevail upon the Country-Clergy, as to induce ’em (not to forbear Preaching, for certainly there is no Need of that, but) to do something becoming their High Character and Christian Office on Sundays in the Afternoon. With His Lordship’s Leave, I should be glad it was only Reading Prayers; gladder, there was a Sermon annex to it; but gladdest, if a little Catechizing and Expounding were adjoin’d. I wish again, tho’ ’tis only a Wish, that this Method was observ’d, where conveniently it may, to frustrate His Lordship’s Complaints against Lecturers, and to answer, and more than answer, “ the wise Constitution “ of our Church in this Respect.

You

YOU have seen already, Sir, and with His Lordship's own Authority, that our Church order'd Children to be Catechised upon Sundays and Holy-Days, as often [only] as Need required; which the First Common-Prayer-Book of King Edward VI. explained to be once in Six Weeks: You have seen, that the Injunctions of Queen Elizabeth enjoyn'd it to be done on every Holy-Day, and Second Sunday in the Year: And, I assure you, that in all the Common-Prayer-Books, till the last Review, it was order'd to be done " Half an Hour before Evening-Song; that is, as the 59th. Canon explains it, " the Minister should, for Half an Hour, before Evening-Prayer, examine and instruct the Youth, and " Ignorant Persons of his Parish, in the Church-Catechism.

I am resolv'd to give you all you can wish for, Sir; and therefore I throw in one of the Rubrics at the End of the Catechism, which says, " That the Curate of every Parish shall diligently upon Sundays and Holy-Days, after the " Second Lesson at Evening-Prayer, openly in " the Church instruct and examin so many Children of his Parish sent unto him, as he shall " think convenient, in some Part of this Catechism -- And the 59th Canon, as I have just " said, enjoins every Parson, Vicar, and Curate, " upon every Sunday and Holy-Day, for Half " an Hour before Evening-Prayer, to Examine " and

“ and Instruct the Youth and Ignorant Persons “ of his Parish in the Church-Catechism, under “ severe Penalties.

THESE Orders, I own, are so far from being comply'd with now, that the Duty of Catechising is reserv'd chiefly for Lent, in Imitation of the Primitive Church. But, pray, Sir, are the Canons themselves, as the King's Letters Patents direct, “ Read once every Year, upon “ some Sundays or Holy-Days, in the After“ noon, before Divine Service, the one Half one “ Day, and the other another Day, by every “ Minister, in the Church or Chapel where he “ hath Charge? I should be glad the Canons were obeyed in every Respect, both by Clergy and Laity; tho' they are hardly in any! And 'tis with Reluctance that I mention the 60th Ca- non, which relates to Confirmation by Bishops, because every Body knows how well They observe it --- But I chuse to draw a Veil here. Yet, after all,
 'tis plain, with Respect to the Nation, that Af- ternoon-Preaching does not obstruct Catechi- sing.

BUT if you are resolv'd, Sir, as I apprehend you are, to confine His Lordship's Ani-madversions upon Lecturers wholly to this City, I beg you will indulge the following Apology for 'em.

AND

AND here you will observe, Sir, that the Sunday Afternoon Lectures of this Town need not throw out the Exercise of Catechising; whether Incumbents do so [only] so often as Need requires, or once in Six Weeks, or on every other Sunday, supposing the Parish is very Large and Populous, or upon every Sunday and Holy-day, according to the Rigour and Letter of the Law: Because all this might be done, notwithstanding our Lectures! Was it done when there was no such Thing? Or, are you sure it would, if Lectures were abolish'd? But, to say no more of 'em; might not Catechising and Expounding be perform'd now, as the Rubric in the Old Common-Prayer-Book runs, and the 59th Canon interprets it, "For Half an Hour" before Evening-Prayer, for all our Afternoon Sermons? Or, since the Church, according to our best Commentators, enjoins Catechising "only so often as Need requires;" and Holy-days are allotted for that Purpose as well as Sundays; are there not Holy-days enow in the Year to answer that End? Especially, when the Weeks of Lent are added to 'em? They Catechise every Thursday at three a Clock in the Afternoon at St. James's; and perhaps His Lordship, when Minister there, Piously and Prudently instituted this Custom.

THOSE who are of Riper Tears, and better Knowledge in the Gospel of Christ, are not always Edify'd and Instructed by the Sermon

Sermon in the Morning, because many of them are so careless as not to attend it: And tho' the Catechism is not Taught and Expounded every Sunday in the Afternoon, for the Benefit of the Younger and more Ignorant; yet I cannot from hence infer, that they are incapable of profiting by Sermons, and that such a Sort of Learning may not be so adapted as to be suitable to their Age and Capacities, and fit to train 'em up in a Christian Method.

AND, since I happen to be particularly concern'd in this Dispute, I beg, for once, Sir, that you will indulge me in mentioning your unworthy Friend as a Proof of what I advance: For, you may please to remember, that I have been about Seven Years Lecturer of your Parish; and, as you are a constant Frequenter of the Church, I doubt not but you are sensible that my Discourses have chiefly turn'd upon the Creed, the Lord's-Prayer, the Commandments, the Sacraments, and the other Fundamental Points laid down in the Church-Catechism: And sure I am, that many other Gentlemen in my Station pursue the same Course. And, if the Old and the Young, the Wise and the Ignorant, are thus reminded and instructed together by Afternoon - Lectures, What is their Crime? Hard Words, High-flown Phrases, and Quaint Expressions, are now quite discarded by all Preachers of Sense in this Town. Their Method is so Plain and Natural, their Stile so Easy and Familiar, and yet so Courtly, that the Best

Best Capacities may generally hear with Pleasure, and the Worst with Instruction. And here I have a just and proper Handle, if I was desirous of extolling my own Order, and capable of doing it, to pay the English-Clergy the greatest and truest Compliment that was ever made to a Profession --- But I forbear it, and only request you to read over the Sermons of that Learned and Pious Prelate, whom you have drawn into this Dispute, and tell me, whether there is any Thing to be met with among the Writings of the Ancients, or among all the Foreign Modern Divines of the Christian World, comparable to 'em, in the Respects I have hinted. And hence I would observe, that if the most Young and Ignorant, as well as the Older and Wiser, do not profit by Afternoon-Sermons, 'tis not the Fault of the Lectures, but of the Lecturers.

BUT I entirely agree with His Lordship, in thinking, "That if Lectures must be allow'd, "Catechising, at least, should not be omitted. And so far is it from being omitted, (I write it with Pleasure and Triumph) within the Bills of Mortality, where almost all the Lectures of this Nation are, that, I believe, the Present Generation of Children, both Rich and Poor, can give a much better Account of their Faith and Catechism, than either the Children in the Primitive Ages could, or all those who have been before 'em since the Establishment of Christianity among us; those, especially, who liv'd before

of LECTURERS. 29

fore Lectures were in Fashion; and that the Children, within this Compass, would, upon Trial, be found far to excel all Others in Great-Britain, where Lectures no Way hinder their Instruction: Tho', even in most Parts of the Country, the Young are not so Ignorant as they us'd to be a few Years ago.

THIS Happy Improvement, I own, Sir, is, in a great Measure, owing to our Charity-Schools, which ought never to forget the vast Obligations they are under to His GRACE of Canterbury. To them is it owing, that our Poor Children are train'd up in the Fear and Nurture of the Lord, and taught to give a better Account of their Faith than the Priests of this Nation formerly could: For the chief Design of this Charity is, after they have learnt to Read, to ground 'em in the Church - Catechism.

AND, that our Young Nobles and Gentry, and others of the Better Sort, are not wanting in this Respect, whatever ill Uses they make of a good Education afterwards, is to be attributed (and with Honour and Gratitude) to the Christian Care and Industry of those Gentlemen who have the Tuition and Forming of them. And, tho' many worthy and learned Lay-Men are employ'd in this Work, and discharge their great Trust in all Respects, yet I cannot forbear congratulating my Country, that our Principal Schools are filled by some of our Chief Clergy; and most others, by those of Figure and Reputation, who do, as they are more particularly bound, make Catechizing as constant and essential a Part of their Scholars Exercise and Duty, as any other whatsoever. For which Reason, I suppose, the 78th Canon enjoins “Curates, desirous to teach Schools, to be Licens’d before Others: And the 79th Canon obliges all School-Masters to teach their Children the Catechism.
our

BUT, should you tell me, Sir, that, tho’ High and Low, one with another, are thus so well vers’d in our Catechism, yet ’tis no Thanks to the Lecturers; I answer, That, if this excellent End is attain’d by just and honest Methods, tho’ otherwise than our Church orders, and that Time is spent in the Service of Religion, which should be taken up in this Labour, She has Reason to Rejoice, and no Man to Complain. But the constant Catechizing twice or thrice a Week every Lent in all our Churches, and the frequent Catechizings which are each Lord’s-Day, and oftner, in this Town, should not be so far forgotten, as to make you think the Clergy disregard the Rubrics and Canons, and neglect the Duty of “training up Children in the Way “they should go.

I profess the highest Deference, Sir, to the Judgment and Opinions of His Grace’s two Incomparable

of LECTURERS. 31

comparable Predecessors, whom He is pleas'd to quote; and also for His Own, which will always carry with me Authority and Weight: But, after all, must beg to be excus'd from thinking, that what Arch-bishop Sheldon, in 1672, and Arch-bishop Sancroft, in 1688, how Seasonable and Wise soever the Articles might be which they sent to their Bishops, " That the Clergy " should diligently Catechize the Children, and " Youth of their Parishes, (as the Rubric of " the Common-Prayer-Book, and 59th Canon " enjoin) " much affects our present Lecturers: Because these Injunctions were sent to the Bishops, from them to the Incumbents, (not the Lecturers) and, if they were not obey'd, must the Lecturers answer for it? Was there no Time in the whole Week to Catechise, but upon one particular Half Hour on Sunday in the Afternoon? Or, could they not order their Lecturers, if they did not think fit to do it themselves, to perform it after the Second-Lesson? But, as Critical as ever that Fracture was, no ill Effects ensu'd for Want of Catechizing: For the Crisis was too short to admit of that. The Good Metropolitan, no Doubt, thought there was a King over Him, who might Reign many Years, and so, by his Zeal and Authority, seduce Multitudes to the Errors of Popery; which inclin'd Him to look so far forward, as to take Care of the succeeding Generation, and to secure it by constant Catechising: But so it happen'd, pen'd, that the Then present Generation was sa Catechiz'd, as to take away all his Grace's Fears of Popery. Nor indeed can I think Catechising was then the properest Method of Defence, or that it will ever be so, in this Nation, in such Cases: For then, the one Side will have only the Children to Discipline, whilst the other has the Men. Such Violent Measures, and Critical junctures, seldom last long here; and therefore, I convey, that Preaching, even Afternoon Preaching, is of much more Service at such Times than Catechizing --- Tho' I agree, That should not be wholly omitted.

I HAVE hitherto postpon'd the principal Point to be answer'd under this Head, which is, " That Lecturers have neither the Laws of " the Realm, nor the Canons of the Church, on their Side: But I shall make it appear to you, Sir, that they have both.

THE Act of Uniformity, Car. II. 14. places Lecturers in the best Company among the Clergy, by the same Authority, and obliges 'em to subscribe the same Declaration, not only with Rectors, but also with Deans and Canons, and Masters of Colleges. And, after such Subscription is made, as the Act requires, every Lecturer shall procure a Certificate under the Hand and Seal of the respective Arch-bishop, Bishop, or Ordinary of the Diocese; who are thereby enjoin'd enjoin'd and requir'd, upon Demand, to make and deliver the same -- So that they are not left to the meer Mercy of Bishops, or Arch-bishops ;but are to be admitted in the same Manner, and depriv'd for the same Reason, with their Betters. Nay, Lecturers are mention'd far oftner in this Act than any other Sort of Clergymen. There are Five Sections together spent upon them; and the very Sermons before the Universities, (of which there are Three a Week, besides Sunday, at One of them,) are here call'd Lectures. Stat. 17. Car. II. Cap. 2. Lecturers are mention'd again, put upon the same Foot, and under the same Penalties, with Parsons and Vicars, according to the Stat. 14. Car. II. Cap. 4.

THO' Lecturers, Sir, were far worse Men Sixty Years since, than they are now, in many Respects, yet you see what Opinion the Legislature had of them. The chief Obligation laid upon them, indeed, in these Statutes, was, that they should not be Rebels; which is so far from being a Compliment to the Lecturers of that Time, that it rather shews their Unworthiness, and the Distrust the Government had of 'em; and not without Reason, the old Leaven of Malice and Wickedness being not then worn out. But, if the Legislature thought 'em worthy of such Privileges then, what do they deserve now? Now, when a Spirit of Sincerity and Truth and Loyalty reigns among 'em? Now, when all the Reasons, of suspecting, or disliking em, are taken away; and all the Reasons the Supream Powers had then in View for establishing them, with many additional Ones, still remain? So that I cannot apprehend what His Lordship means by saying, Lecturers are not wholly contrary to our Present Establishment, since they are establish'd by Acts of Parliament.

D

'em,

So far are Lecturers, Sir, from being contrary to the Laws of the Realm---And judge you whether they are repugnant to the Canons of the Church, when the 56th puts Rectors and Lecturers together, and orders 'em both to read Divine Service, and administer the Sacraments, twice a Year, upon Pain of being equally suspended by the Diocesan. Several other Canons mention Lecturers; but I spare the Trouble of reciting 'em.

AND now, Sir, I am forc'd to come to the Third Charge against Lecturers, which is very heavy indeed--- " That these New Teachers " and Lecturers Preach (oftentimes) not so much " to the real Benefit, as to the Fancies and Inclinations of those by whom they are to be " Paid for it. Pudet hæc Opprobria, &c.

AND, can all the Wit of Man, Sir, help this? Sorry I am, that the Meanest People, in a Free-born Nation, should be under such Slavery, as to submit their Labour to the Fancies and Inclinations of those by whom they are to be be

of LECTURERS. 35

be paid for it, when such Labour is for their real Benefit --- Much sorrier, that our Constitution should be so defective, as to leave Gentlemen, the Professors of Physick and Law, the Guardians of our Lives and Estates, who are not only Men of the Best Families and Accomplishments in our Nation, but an Honour to it throughout all Europe, at the Fancies and Inclinations of those by whom they are to be paid. But neither the Men, nor the Gentlemen, in this Case, are much to be pity'd; since They have it so much in their Power, if they are Once injur'd, as to be their own Carvers the Second Time. But His Lordship knew that the Case of Lecturers was far otherwise, tho' their Families, and the Expence of their Education, is generally the same -- He knew, and therefore compassionately bewail'd the Temptation they were under, to Preach to the Fancies and Inclinations of those by whom they were to be paid for it -- And, therefore, his Lordship's Concern was very kind; since Lecturers are under the hard Necessity, whether they Preach to the real Benefit, or to the Fancies and Inclinations of their Payers, to state the Case as He does: Because their Pay-Masters may do as they please -- Let me then beg Leave to sit down, and lament for a few Minutes, the deplorable Condition of My self and Brethren -- And yet I cannot call it so Deplorable neither, when I reflect upon the friendly Generosity of our Citizens, and kind Benefactors; nor do I complain of Their Generosity to us, who have yet done us so much Justice, that we have not any where else appeal'd for it. And if we are contented, why are others uneasy?

THAT some Few of these new Teachers, Sir, may be so base and mercenary, as to seek more their own Lucre, than the Glory of God; as to consult the Fancies and Opinions, more than the real Benefit, of those to whom they Preach; is no great Wonder, as Times go: But, I verily believe, that the Number of such Wretches is very small; and, I thank God, I am acquainted with none of 'em.

THE Lecturers of this Town, Sir, had the same Education, have the same Degrees, and, I am persuaded, have the same Regard for Truth, with the Incumbents of it; tho' they have not the same Encouragement, or Certainty of Subsistence. --- And yet, if you'll take the Trouble of comparing the Sermons Printed by the Incumbents and Lecturers, I dare say you will find the Lecturers full as Sound and Orthodox as the Incumbents! You will find that they have boldly oppos'd Popery, Heresy and Schism, and that the Precariousness of their Maintenance did not tie up their Pens.

AND, Sir, at this very Day, if you examin their Doctrine, and Manner of Life, you'll have little Room to complain: Little Reason to accuse 'em of using deceitful Words, and daubing

daubing with untempered Morter, to receive the vile Wages of Sin -- But, on the contrary, that they make the pure Word of God the Rule of their Preaching, as expounded by the Primitive Fathers and Councils of the Christian Church, and confirm'd and bounded by the Rubricks, Articles, and Canons of our own. -- And here Lecturers stand upon sure Ground, and need never to be ashamed whilst they so stand, however particular Parties of Men are pleas'd or displeas'd. --- As to their Manner of Life, I hope 'tis such as becomes the Gospel of Christ.

BUT, tho' I have been oblig'd to run this Parallel so far between Incumbents and Lecturers; and hope I have done it with Decency; yet sure I am, that it was with no View of putting 'em upon an Equality, of encouraging Lecturers to oppose Rectors, to form separate Interests, to be busy in Parish-Affairs, or any Way in the World to prejudice 'em in their Dues, Rights and Privileges. -- For the Duty of these Lecturers, I am now speaking of, is only to Preach on Sundays in the Afternoon. --- But if, in the Absence of the Ministers and Curates, they can any Way be serviceable to the Parishes they belong to, they ought to do it, and without Fee or Reward, leaving that for those to whom it belongs. Yet, considering the Weakness of Human Nature, I can't help wishing, that, since Lecturers are employ'd, and approv'd of by our Laws, this Objection of his Lordship's was taken away, and their Income so ascertain'd, as to be under no Suspicion of Preaching to the Fancies and Inclinations of their Benefactors. And I am so far from wishing this, I assure you, out of Covetousness, to enrich Lecturers, or to burthen Parishes, that I should be glad to see it done, tho' the Legal Stated Produce of every Lecture in Town was less than 'tis now upon Contribution. Nor do I despair of seeing the Time, when a British Parliament will, upon due Application, take away this Temptation both from Preachers and Hearers.

AND now, Sir, having gone through the Particulars of your Letter, and Answer'd 'em as well as I could in this short Time, and without the least intended Offence to any Body; I am sure you will suffer me to offer a few Hints in Favour of Lecturers.

AND here I need not say any Thing in Justification of the Professors and Lecturers in both our Universities, who are Men of the best Learning and Abilities, of singular Service to those Illustrious Places, and consequently to the whole Nation. There the Founders of 'em are justly Commemorated, and God Prais'd for their good Works, as some of the best of Benefactors to Mankind. Somewhat of the same Nature might be urg'd for the Liberal Founder of the Lectures, or Professorships, of Gresham-College, and all other Establishments of that Kind. Were they not

not All piously intended to promote Religion, Learning, good Manners? And do they not answer these noble Ends? If not, whose Fault is it?

BUT, if we must speak of Lecturers only with Regard to Preaching; sure no Apology can be expected for all those Charitable Legacies and Donations, which have been left by many Well-dispos'd Persons, to support the Week-Day Sermons, not only in London and Westminster, but also in several other Cities and Places in this Kingdom. It would be very ungrateful and unchristian not to keep the Memories of such Munificent People in Remembrance! Tho' they are Dead, they still Speak, and ought to be Celebrated for it! Without Doubt, they have their Reward; yet this Acknowledgement is due to their Ashes, and ought ever to be paid, as a Tribute to past Virtue, and an Excitement to Posterity to rival their Actions and Examples! And surely he knows very little of the Present State of the Church, so corrupted in Faith and Practice, who can think these Lectures useless now; and has a mean Opinion of the Preachers and Hearers of'em, if he can fancy such Sermons don't contribute to the checking of Infidelity, and the Encrease of real Sanctity and Holiness! For, as Morality, and the Heresies of the Times, were the chief Matter of the Discourses of the Fathers, so also are they of Ours. I must therefore wish, that more of these Lectures were establish'd, (as one has lately been, by a Worthy Lady, and our * Good Mellitus, our Belov'd Dioceſan) than that any of 'em were retrench'd. I might have mention'd before, the vaſt Advantages Chriſtianity has receiv'd from the Honourable Mr. Boyle's Lecture; but, That is too well known to need Mentioning: Nor is it fear'd, but that, by the Bleſſing of Heaven, the One will, in Time, as effectually ſilence all the Enemies to our Saviour's Divinity, as the Other has all thoſe to the Being of a God.

BUT, Sir, if you have no Objection againſt Lecturers in general, nor Preaching-Lecturers upon Week-Days, whether Preparation-Sermons for the Bleſſed Sacrament, thoſe on Chriſtmas-Day, Good-Friday, or any other Days enjoin'd to be obſerv'd by the Church of England, but confine me to ſpeak ſoly to Sunday-Lecturers I obey your Commands, and only deſire to aſk, whether you think all thoſe Lectures on Sunday-Mornings, at 6, and 7, and 8 a Clock, of which Sort we have many in this Town, ſome ſupported by the Pious Gifts of the Deceas'd, and others by the Charitable Contributions of the Living, whereby the Prayers of our Church are Read, Sermons Preach'd, and the Holy Communion often Adminiſter'd, to Perſons who could not ſo conveniently, or perhaps not at all, perform thoſe Divine Duties at the ſtated Times,

of LECTURERS. 41

Times, want an Excuse? The Act of Uniformity, Car. 11. 14. enjoyns, " that no Lecture " upon Sundays, Holy-Days, or other Week-Days, shall be Preach'd, without having the "Common-Prayer first Read; which makes it oftner read than it would otherwise be. And, are not these Lectures, so Piously intended, so Religiously carry'd on, and which contribute so much to the Quieting of Consciences, to the Saving of Souls, to the Honour of Christ and His Institutions, and to the Good of Society, to be, by all Means, Applauded, Encourag'd, Continu'd!

AND, Sir, if you grant me this; pray what Fault can you find with our Sunday-Evening-Lectures, which are Weekly supported in Many of our Churches, and Monthly in Others? As, by the Morning Lectures, Servants, Apprentices, and other well-inclin'd Persons, partake of the Ordinances of the Church, which they could not do at the stated Times: So also do such People, and those of an Higher Rank, who could not attend the Afternoon-service, supply that Deficiency by these Evening-Lectures. And, is it not a Subject of Rejoycing, if several Devout Members of our Church enjoy all these Four Advantages, as I believe they do, of offering up their Prayers in Public to God, and hearing His Word Read and Preach'd to em? Certain I am, as you have seen above, that Christians were wont, in the Primitive and Purest Ages of the Church,

not

not to be tir'd with Three or Four Sermons on a Lord's-Day.

AND sure, Sir, you must like these Evening-Lectures very well, when you consider, that they don't hinder Catechizing, but promote it: That great Numbers of Children are examin'd in 'our Church-Catechism at 'em, requir'd to prove every Article of it from Holy Writ, and that hereby they are taught, not only to Rival, but to Excel, all the other Youth of the Age. And, not only so; but the Discourses which follow from the Pulpit upon these Occasions, are often in a Catechetical Stile, and usually so Plain and Practical, as to be suitable to their Age and Capacities, fit to ground 'em in the first Principles of the Oracles of God, and to train 'em up in the Way they should go. All which is no Burthen to the People, who are at Liberty to throw in their Mites, or to keep 'em to rust and canker in their Pockets. And here I have another fair Opportunity of extolling our Charity-Schools: But since they are thus known by their Fruits, which so apparently shine before Men, I shall pass 'em over as above all Praise of Words, and only silently glorify our Father, and our Queen, who are in Heaven, for 'em! And, let me add, our King on Earth.

SINCE you have forc'd me, Sir, against my Inclinations, to be a mean Advocate for Lecturers, I hope you can't think this foreign to my Purpose.

of LECTURERS. 43

Purpose. But, if you are resolv'd to tie me down closely to Lecturers on Sundays in the Afternoon, I submit, and beg you to accept of what just hastily offers to my Pen in their Defence. And I shall take it for granted here, that these Lecturers are Men of the same Education and Degrees with our Incumbents; that they Preach as sound Doctrine; that they need not obstruct Catechizing, as it appears by the Effects they don't in this Town; that they are so far from being contrary to our present Establishment, that it approves of 'em: If not, how come they to be chosen by the Parishoners, to be suffer'd by the Rectors, and to be licensed by the Bishops? I could name Sunday-Afternoon-Lectures which were founded many Years ago, and are still supported by Legacies: But, to instance in one, you may please to recollect, that there are 7 l. a Year left, and so long since, that we can't yet trace the Original of it, to maintain such a Lecture in our Own Church. If such Charities were then thought Illegal, how came the Lectures to be founded, to be hitherto continu'd, and the Salaries paid?

IF you say, Sir, there were no such Persons in the Primitive Church; I answer, that all the Clergy were in the State of Lecturers then. If you say, there was no such Afternoon-Preaching, for many Ages, after Churches were built and endow'd; the more was the Pity. But, if you say they were not so Customary in this City till till the Times of Confusion, I grant it, and rejoyce in the Effect, tho' I lament the Cause: For, when they were then usher'd in by our Church, into many Churches, 'twas indeed without any other Law than Necessity, which is always a Law of it self. The Disloyalists first set 'em up, encouraged 'em, and made the vilest Uses of 'em: And this provok'd the Church to look out for an Antidote to expel this Venom; and the best she could think of, was to oppose 'em with their own Weapons, by having Lecturers too, who might confute Gainsayers, and preserve Her Members from Contagion. And is She to be blam'd for Self-preservation? Especially, when there was no Law against Her so acting? Or, had Her Adversaries, at least, better Right to send out Goliath's against Her, than She had to send out Some to demolish 'em? To sow Tares, than She had to sow Wheat?

FOR this Reason, Sir, as I have been inform'd, were all the Week-Day-Lectures at St. Bartholomew-Exchange founded, by Christians who had Zeal with Knowledge: And God grant they may ever answer this End, and so the Intention of their Donors! That they may ever combat with Error, Heresy, Schism, and all Antimonarchical Principles!

BUT, if you grant the Reason of the first Institution of Lecturers to be Good, yet dislike 'em now for their Novelty, because they are generally

of LECTURERS. 45

nerally of about only 100 Years standing; I assure you, Sir, that I like Novelties, either in Church or State, (tho' I have shewn above that Lecturers are no Novelty) as little as you possibly can; and promise, that, if you will rectify some Worse Novelties, which have since incorporated themselves with our Establishment, I will be the Foremost to strike out that of Lecturers. But, if All Novelties are to be condemn'd, I could soon give you a very Large Catalogue: Yet I am so far of another Opinion, that I think the Exigencies of Times and Places, and Publick Welfare, may Authorize such Novelties, as are not Contrary to a Divine Law --- Which, I believe, you will own Sermons on Sundays in the Afternoon not to be.

AND now, Sir, I shall wind up this long and incorrect Letter, with shewing a few of the Advantages of continuing such Lecturers as we are discoursing of, and of the Disadvantages which would probably ensue upon the Discontinuance of 'em.

AND, can I begin with a greater Honour to them, than the Drawing and Keeping of People to the Church? For, since the same Distemper still rages, ought not the same Remedy to be still apply'd? (This His Lordship owns, in Concurrency with his last Grace of Canterbury!) Those who differ from us, have more Lectures now, than ever; the People have full as itching Ears:

Ears: And, therefore, can our Lectures be thought more unnecessary now, than they were at first? Ought we to suffer our Opponents to excel us in any Respect? Or, should we not be in Labours more abundant, tho' you think them above Measure? For, if Preachers fail, Seducers will not; but the Defection of our People to Popish Superstition, or Seditious Novelties, or downright Atheism, would ensue --- For these Charmers would fascinate the Multitude, and draw many away; but constant Preaching hinders the Two Extremes from swallowing up our Church.

WERE we all of the same Opinion, were there no Strivings of Parties, no Emulations for different Ends, and each of us so Religious as we ought to be: Was the Case in Great-Britain, as a Learned Author tells us 'tis in Sueden,* Where the Lutheran Religion has never “ been distracted by Non-Conformity since the “ Reformation; all the Orders of Men agreeing “ in a constant Attendance on Divine Service, “ and a Zeal for their own Way, without any “ nice Enquiries into disputable Points, either “ in their own Tenets, or those of other “ Churches; whereby it becomes the Business “ of their Preachers, rather to persuade the Practice of Piety, than to oppose the Doctrine “ of others, or defend their own: -- Catechetical

* Account of Sueden, 3d Edition, p. 25.

of LECTURERS. 47

tical Discourses out of the Desk might do full as well as Sermons from the Pulpit on Sundays in the Afternoon: But since this is rather to be wish'd, than hop'd for, we are to use all justifiable Means to Save Some; and 'tis lawful to try to please the People for their Edification, after the Example of St. Paul. *

AND, since we are so divided in Opinion, that we set up Altar against Altar, and seem more to consult our Palates and Fancies, than Truth and substantial Holiness; since we find our Liturgy, which is the most primitive and compleat Collection of Publick Devotion that is us'd in any Church in the World, does not keep up an adequate Sense of its Excellence, and Spirit of Piety; since the Humour so runs, that Catechizing and Expounding, when added to the Common-Prayer, are unfortunately thought so dry and jejune, that they are not duly attended; and since all Discipline seems to be so fast a sleep, that we know not when it will awaken; what other Method have we left of drawing Men to the Church, than by their Ears? Especially, when we foresee that they would probably be led, by enticing Words, to other Places, if they were not thus drawn Thither! 'Twas a Saying in St. Chrysostome's Days, "Why should I go to " Church, if I cannot hear a Sermon? We hear " the same Things read every Day to us out of " Scripture! They complain'd then, that Sermons " were

* 1 Cor. x. 33.

“ were not Frequent enough, or too Short --- And People would part with any other Office of Religion now, rather than Sermons.

BUT this is not all, Sir --- For such Lectures are of singular Service, even to those who would go to no other Place of Worship than the Church, if they were not instructed there. The Best and Wisest of us may well bear with a Sermon in the Afternoon, tho’ we heard one in the Morning: Especially, since One Sermon was far longer formerly than Two are now; when they Preach’d till the Tongues of the one, and the Ears of the other, were quite tired out --- But such is the Delicacy and Tenderneſs of our Nobility and Gentry, at least in the Winter, that they seldom get ready for the Morning-Service: And, I fear, if there was no Sermon in the Afternoon, tho’ too Few come then into the House of the Lord, there would be much Fewer.

AND then, Sir, Servants, &c. who are much the greatest Part of this Town, tho’ they have an equal Title with their Masters to the Means of Grace and Hopes of Glory, are generally so confin’d, that they have no Time to pay their Addresses to their Maker, and to learn their Duty to Him and their Governours, but in the Afternoon. So that High and Low, Rich and Poor, one with another, as Matters now stand, seem to require these Lectures: For bare Catechizing and Expounding, you are persuaded, would hardly

of LECTURERS. 49

hardly induce many to think the Church more pleasant than the Fields. Accordingly, in the Reign of King James I. before Lectures were so frequent, the People were wont to spend the Afternoon on Sundays at Foot-ball, and such-like Diversions; and therefore that Learned Monarch writ a most Orthodox Treatise of the Observation of the Lord's-Day, and dedicated it to the Bishops and Clergy of England.

THESE Advantages, Sir, affect the City in General -- But, among those which are Particular, I am sorry to mention One; which is, that it sometimes so unfortunately happens, upon some Account or other, that the Parishioners are so prejudic'd against their Minister, that they will not go to hear him in the Morning; and, if he either Preach'd, or Expounded, in the Afternoon, would refuse to do it: The Consequence of which is, that they either wholly forsake the assembling of themselves together, or go to separate assemblies, or at least break the Parochial Unity and Communion of Saints, by licentious Gadding to other Churches; a Practice contrary to the OEconomy of our Church, and productive of numerous ill Consequences. In this bad Case, should it happen, I think 'tis very happy that we have Lecturers to keep Folks to their own Churches in the Afternoon: For, however it may be with Incumbents, who are put upon 'em, and, whether they like 'em or not, must take 'em for better for worse, one would suppose the Lecturers, who are their own Choice, by whom they are voluntarily paid, and whom they can either Turn out, or Starve in, should not be unacceptable. But I put this only as a Case in Possibility -- And, if it ever falls out, that Lecturer would be very base and ungenerous, who took Advantage of his Rector's Misfortunes, and insinuated himself at his Expence; whereas he ought rather to do all in his Power, where there is Room, to restore his Credit and Authority.

E

suppose

BUT, Sir, were all Ministers ever so acceptable and belov'd in their Parishes, and oblig'd to Preach Twice in the same Church every Sunday, or to Catechize and Expound, yet Lecturers are still of singular Service to them, and the Inhabitants: For, how well soever these Duties might be discharg'd, we have all such a natural Itch to Novelty and Variety, that I question whether their Labours would be so agreeable as they now are, whilst they discharge only the Function of the Morning, and leave that of the Afternoon to Lecturers. I could appeal to Experience for the Truth of this Remark, and instance in some Parishes within the Bills of Mortality, where the Effects are bad of the Ministers supplying both Parts of the Day; and yet might be rectify'd, and without the least Prejudice to their Incomes, if they would allow the Parishoners to elect Lecturers. I mention this only as a plain Proof of what I advance, and without any invidious Design.

MANY

of LECTURERS. 51

MANY Incumbents, Sir, have not Constitutions strong enough to perform their Offices in Person, without weekly disordering themselves, impairing their Health, and shortning their Lives. What ought they in Prudence to do then? Why, they must pay Assistants to supply their Places, and so pinch themselves and Families. Is not the Case much better now for them?

BUT, were all Rectors never so strong and healthy, very Few of 'em, I'm perswaded, have so little Modesty, as to think themselves capable of composing Two Discourses every Week fit to be deliver'd to the Congregations of this Town, considering the various Calls they have out of their Studies, to Baptize, to Visit the Sick, to Bury the Dead, to answer the Avocations of their own Families, to beg for the Poor and Distress'd, and to solicit Favours, and do Good Offices, for their Friends, their Brethren, their Acquaintance: For, I may say, without blushing, that no Body of Men in this City have such frequent Applications to 'em, are made the Instruments of conveying so many Favours, and more sincerely endeavour to serve all Ranks and Degrees of Human-kind, than the Clergy. Yet I mention this, not as their Hardship, but their Honour; since it shews the Credit they are still in, and their Readiness to copy their Master's Example, "Who always went about Doing Good!"

BUT, to pass over every other Advantage of Lecturers to Incumbents -- Pray, Sir, who generally enjoy the Lectures of this Town? Do not the Parish-Ministers? And, do they not want 'em? For, I fancy, that, taking One Living with Another within the Walls, after Curates are paid, and Taxes, Expences, and Disbursements, inevitably attending 'em, discharg'd, they hardly bring in clear 150 l. per Annum. And what a Maintenance is this, considering Where, and How they must Live, for a London Rector and his Family? What Provision can he make for his Wife and Children out of it? The Lectures, therefore, which they have, satisfy their Curates, hedge in the Outgoings of their Livings, and help to keep 'em in tolerable Plight. And who can find in his Heart to envy 'em this?

YET I am far from upbraiding the Generosity of the Citizens: For, were they not liberal above Law, few of their Pastors could live. I might nevertheless give a Hint here, of the Difference of the Value of Money when their Rates were settled, and now: And hope to be excus'd, if I was so Bold, or so Compassionate, (call it which you will) as to wish this Hardship was inspected by the Legislature.

NOR is it only an Ease and Profit to the Ministers, but also an Honour and Pleasure to the Citizens, to have their Churches thus decently supply'd,

of LECTURERS. 53

supply'd, commonly by Three Clergymen, Pastor, Curate, Lecturer. As they are not only richer, but abound more than Country-Parishes, in all the Comforts and Elegancies of Life; so may they ever continue to do, and as well in Spirituals, as Temporals!

NOR are Lecturers and Curates only of Advantage to the Ministers and People in these Respects; but also, the great Number of Lectures and Cures here are of vast Service to the Church in general, by having so many of the Younger Clergy supported, by these Methods, in this Town. And yet who can say there are too many? Or, that we are over-run with em? Or, that they are burthensom? When he recollects the small Pittance of their Maintenance, and that we have scarce one Clergyman to a thousand Laymen.

LECTURERS, Sir, are also greatly beneficial to this City, by being, as it were, a Nursery for Rectors of it, and training 'em up, Step by Step, to be qualify'd for that Post. Reward is the Mother of Industry: And, as all the Lectures of this Town, and many of the Livings, are at the Disposal of the Citizens, young Gentlemen, who seldom come full ripe out of the Universities, when they find they are to be encourag'd and preferr'd here according to their Merits, double their Diligence and Studies in Order to deserve Promotion.

AND, were it not for this Method, how could the City be properly supply'd with Incumbents? If you say, out of the Universities; I grant it -- But, pray, did not these Lecturers and Curates come out of the Universities? And, after they have been employ'd many Years in these lower Stations, ought they not to be suppos'd (Practical Knowledge being certainly the Best) more fitly qualify'd for Parish-Priests, than those who were never conversant in Parochial Affairs? But, if you say, they may be call'd out of the Country; I fancy you would be disappointed, tho' there are many Worthy and Learned Gentlemen among the Country-Clergy: For the Air, the Customs, the Expences, are so different here from what they are there, that, I believe, Few would care to quit a Living of 100*l.* a Year there, for one of 150*l.* here. And, as these Lectures are of Service to the City; so also are they to the Country, by breeding up and qualifying fit Clergymen to be sent into it, for whom there is not Employment here. All which tends to the Glory of the Nation, as well as of the Church.

I have purposely omitted, Sir, to mention one Thing in Favour of Lecturers, which is, that there is not Room in many Churches for all the Parishioners, or a Quarter of 'em, to pay their Duty to God together in the Morning; because our New Churches go on so fast, or ought so to do, that I hope that Argument will be soon taken away, and and many Persons left without Excuse, who now make that an Apology for staying at Home, or going Abroad, or running to Neighbouring Churches, or such Places of Worship as are only Tolerated.

AND, if Effects may justify Causes, pardon me in observing, Sir, that the meanest of our Order are not chosen into Lectures in this Town; or, if they are, that Lectures so exceedingly improve 'em, that a great Part, not only of our Late, but also of our Present Bishops, mounted directly out of these Stations into their Episcopal Sees; and that Men of the best Figure in our Profession fill many of these Posts now: Which should be so interpreted, I think, that the Court is so far from disapproving of 'em, that it distinguishes 'em; and that the Citizens are so far from deserving Censure, that they seem to merit Thanks from the Legislature, for making such proper Choices of their Lecturers, and encouraging 'em so long with their Bounty and Liberality, till they are fit for the Royal Countenance, and thought qualify'd to serve the Church and State in the Highest Posts.

YOU see, Sir, with what great Freedom and Plainness I have asserted the Authority of our Preaching, tho' we are not inspir'd, tho' we are not sent and authoriz'd by God in an extraordinary Way, and endow'd with Miraculous Gifts, as the first Preachers were: Yet, since St. Chrysa-

5 me says, " St. Paul converted the World, not " so much by his Miracles, as by his continual
 " Preaching, can you think our Labour is wholly in vain now? That I have pursu'd this Argument so far, is not only in Obedience to your Letter, but also to justify a Divine Institution, which has continu'd more or less in all Periods of the Church, and is now, I think, by vast Industry and Application, advanc'd to the highest Degree of Eminence in Our Own; Foreigners generally taking not that Pains in Ten Sermons, which many of us do in One. And, as we preach oftner than Foreign Churches; so we keep the Lord's-Day better observ'd; which supports the spiritual Grandeur of Religion among us more than other Nations.

ALL this, Sir, you have forc'd me to say unwillingly: And, how many Blushes soever it may have cost me in writing it, yet this is my Comfort, that I think I have written such Truths as need not blush.

AND, Sir, since I have ventur'd so far, and find my Face begins to harden a little now, I shall dare to tell you one Truth more: Which is, That since Lecturers are legal Ministers, Ministers of your own chusing, and so useful and advantageous in many Respects, you are bound, both by the Law and the Gospel, as I could soon make appear, to Support and Maintain 'em in an handsome Manner. How little Reason I have my

of LECTURERS. 57

my self to complain, upon this Account, you very well know; how many Reasons I have to thank and esteem the Parish we belong to, you know likewise: And, therefore, I may speak, both with Modesty to my self, and Honour to our Parish, upon this Point, in Hopes of doing Justice and Service to other Gentlemen in my own Station.

FOR a Proof of this, I refer you to the Offertory, or Sentences in the Communion-Office, which are Texts out of the New Testament, selected by the Church, as Instructions and Exhortations to this great Duty, written long before any Legal Provision was made for the Clergy, and still as binding, where there is no such Provision yet made for 'em: For the Ministers of the Gospel, without any Distinction, are to live by the Gospel, according to the Commands of our Saviour, and the Practice of His Apostles. * “ Who “ goeth a Warfare at any Time of his own Cost?
 “ Who planteth a Vineyard, and eateth not of the “ Fruit thereof? Or who feedeth a Flock, and eat-“ eth not of the Milk of the Flock? If we have “ sown unto you spiritual Things, is it a great “ Matter if we shall reap your worldly Things? Do “ ye not know that they who minister about Holy “ Things, live of the Sacrifice? And, they who “ wait at the Altar, are Partakers with the Altar?
 “ Even so hath the Lord also ordained, that they “ who preach the Gospel, should live of the Gospel.
 “ † Let him that is taught in the Word, minister “ unto

* 1 Cor. ix. 7, 11, 13, 14. † Gal. vi. 6.

“unto him that teacheth in all good Things. This is the Gospel-Maintenance, the Church's Duty to Ministers with Regard to Provision. A plentiful Subsistence for the Priests and Levites was expressly enjoyn'd by the Mosaic Law; and this Point is so often repeated and inculcated throughout the whole Old Testament, that it would require a Volume to recite all the Passages; tho' Preaching did not begin in the Jewish Church till the Time of Ezra. -- Yet all the Ministers belonging to the Temple had such an ample Allowance provided for 'em by God, that, according to the Computation of Selden, the whole Tythe amounted to near the 5th Part of the whole Revenue of the Land, besides Offerings, Sacrifices, &c. tho' the Tribe of Levi was so small a Body of People, in Comparison of the rest, that it did not amount to the 49th Part, as may be seen, Numb. 1. 3. -- Whence it is evident, that those who then attended Divine Service, must needs be very rich. It is well known, that in the Primitive Times, the Clergy had a liberal Support out of the Offerings of the People: And, I am sure, they have still the same Right, where there is not a legal and stated Income. Nor were the very Gentiles wanting in this Respect, we may be sure, since Joseph, when he made Pharoah Proprietor of all Egypt, presum'd not to “Buy the Land of the Priests. And since, at the Rise of the Roman Empire, the Senators and Priests, and all those who had the chief Inspection over the Affairs of Religion, were

of LECTURERS. 59

were chosen only out of the Patricians, or Nobility, can you doubt of their having a plentiful Maintenance? But, to return ---

ALL the Priests of our Church, Sir, are promiscuously invested, by Ordination, with Authority to preach the Gospel; and equally empower'd, I think, by the Gospel, to receive their Reward for so doing: But, such is the Happiness of Incumbents, (absit Dicto Invidia) that, as they are obliged by Law to preach, so are they also by Law enabled to recover their Recompence for it. Yet Incumbents are not obligated to preach above once a Month. The 45th Canon indeed directs "every benefic'd Man, allow'd to be a Preacher, to preach, if he thinks fit, one Sermon every Sunday in the Year, either at His own Church, or some Other -- But, * if a benefic'd Man is not allow'd to be a Preacher, he must get a Sermon once a Month, if his Living can pay for it. Yet, after all, no Canons enforce Ministers to preach so often as they do; and no Penalties are annexed to those which enjoin any Preaching.

So that the Office of Preaching, when the Government thinks fit to exert it self, is not appropriated to Livings, as appears from Canon 49th about Licences; from the Conduct of the Reigns of H. VIII Edward VI, Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, when such Persons only were allow'd to Preach, whether they had Livings or not, (tho' this was a most excessive Strain of Authority) as were Licens'd so to do.

* Canon 46.

RECTORS, therefore, may be silenc'd, Sir, and Curates, or Lecturers, appointed to preach in their Sted: For Legal-Predching seems to depend wholly upon a Licence from the Diocesan; that is the only Human Title they both have for this Practice; and therefore, I conceive, that when a Rector is Licens'd to Preach in a Church, and a Lecturer also, they have an equal Authority for Preaching, tho' they have not for Payment. The Rector, indeed, may deny the Lecturer his Pulpit, as being his Freehold: A Common-Law Case, which can never be insisted on, by a spiritual Man, (when no flagrant Crime glares in the Lecturer) without Contempt and Derision, even from good Christians: And, when the Rector has done, the Bishop may also, if he pleases, silence Him too, and order a Third Person to supply both their Places: And all this with the utmost Equity; for if Clergymen can't agree, who should? Tantane Animis Cœlestibus Iræ? They sin against their Profession, when they don't set a Pattern of Peace to their Followers!

So that Rectors, Lecturers, and Curates, if Licens'd to preach, have the same Right so to do, in Order to promote the Glory of God, and to edify the People: And, Sir, judge you whether they have not an equal Right to be paid! And, if so, I am pretty sure, that those who give Nothing to Lecturers,

of LECTURERS. 61

Lecturers, would do just the same to their Parish-Priests, if they were at the same Liberty: For, as they are alike licens'd to preach in the same Churches, and, without Affront, alike do so, I can see no Gospel-Reason why they should not be alike paid.

BUT the Lecturers wave this Plea in Deference to our Laws; and only desire their Auditors to consider, that, if there were no such Laws, whether they wou'd be most liberal to the Incumbent, Curate, or Lecturer. But I forbear -- That the Labourer is worthy of his Hire, is plainly affirm'd -- Such Labourers Lecturers are, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the edifying of the Body of Christ: And therefore deserve their Hire; tho' they are not Hirelings any more than the Rectors. But, as the Incumbents have positive Laws on their Side, and are bound to Visit and take Care of the whole Parishes they belong to, 'tis but just and equitable, that they should have a much Better Income than the Lecturers, who are only to Preach on Sundays in the Afternoon. Yet they usually do other Offices, and without any other Advantage, than that of obliging the Ministers and Parishes.

THAT those who frequent the Church, and sit under the Ministry of Lecturers, Sir, are bound in Conscience and Decency to contribute, according to their several Stations and Abilities, to the Maintenance of their respective Lecturers, is too clear to want any Proof -- Res ipsa loquitur. : And, that those who slight all Places of Worship, and those who go to separate ones, ought to be Neighbourly in this one Case, which is left to their Free-Will, as well as in such Rates and Payments as they are forc'd to comply with, might be made appear: Because there are but few Families, God be thank'd, out of which none go to the Parish-Church; upon whose Account those who officiate in it ought to be encourag'd.

I remember the Learned Bishop Gibson mentions, in His Codex, A Provision for Lecturers before the Restoration, and quotes for it, 13, 14. Car. II. Cap. 25. §. 1. Which Statute sets forth, " That the Loyalists were constrained to settle " Advowsons, Rectories, Glebes and Tythes, to " the Uses assign'd by the Long-Parliament, as " Compositions for Delinquency, as they call'd it, which was chiefly appropriated for the Maintenance of Preaching Ministers and Lecturers. --- The Act of Exemption likewise says, 1^{mo}. Gul. & Mar. " That Nothing therein contain'd, shall be construed to exempt any of the " Persons aforesaid from paying of Tythes, or other " Parochial Duties, or any Other Duties to the Church or Minister. -- I have recited the Former of these Statutes, to shew those who differ from us, what Care their Forefathers took to provide for Lecturers, tho' I wish they may never have such a Provision again: And the Latter, to remind 'em, that, tho' they are dispens'd with for not Going to Church, yet they are not from Paying all the Duties to the Church and Minister.
not

BUT Lecturers ought chiefly to be encourag'd out of a Sense of Religion, and of Love and Obedience to our Blessed Lord and Master, who commands his Disciples to propagate the Gospel, to drive away all erroneous and strange Doctrine, and all his Followers to contribute liberally and chearfully to such as undertake that difficult Employ -- So that those who give out of Personal Respect to the Preacher, or with any other Views than these; or withdraw their Subscriptions upon every little Omission of Ceremony, and the like; give upon false Principles, and so forfeit the Reward they might otherwise justly expect from their Saviour for complying with His Injunctions.
Particular Likeings and Affections, Prejudices and Parties, should be overlook'd here; and the Mite which is cast into this Treasury, ought to be esteem'd, not as an Offering to Men, but unto the Lord, in Order to convert the Wicked, to confirm the good, to keep the Wolf from the Sheep, and to convince Gainsayers. And therefore I cannot but wonder how many Citizens and Christians, who are very Zealous in their several Ways, and like Lecturers mighty well, can satisfy their Consciences, in giving 'em either Nothing at all, or less than they do to their Common Watchmen. The Case is far otherwise among those who differ from us; and I'm sorry their Honour should be our Disgrace.

IF you say, Sir, Lecturers cannot gather Tythes; that they have no legal Demands; and cannot force your Money out of your Pockets: Yet, pray, are they not Ministers of the Gospel? Do they not constantly preach it? Are they not chosen by you yourselves so to do? Are they not Shepherds, Messengers, Watchmen, Stewards? Does not their Education cost 'em as much Time, and Pains, and Expences, as that of the Incumbents? Do not their Sermons do the same? Then, surely, they have a Natural Right, as well as an Evangelical one, to your Oblations! If they have no Tythes, must they have no Offerings? If they cannot command a Maintenance by Law, are they entitled to None by the Gospel? If they cannot make you pay, as you ought, for their reasonable Service, are you not the more oblig'd to give it? Even Tythe of the Rent of Houses is not due of Common Right, tho' Acts of Parliament secure such Payment to the London-Clergy: But it was originally call'd an Offering, or Oblation, in Proportion to the Rent of Houses in the City of London; and afterwards Tythes, tho' 'tis not allow'd to be a Predial Tythe.

BUT this is a Task so Ungrateful to me, and generally, I thank God, so Unnecessary now, (such a Spirit of Generosity reigning among our Citizens, notwithstanding all the great Wrecks of Fortunes, all the dismal Calamities we at this Time labour under, and all the just Tears
and

of LECTURERS. 65

and Complainings in our Streets, which I hope the Almighty will soon avert, and turn into Songs of Joy and Thanksgiving,) that I am sure you will excuse my drawing the Curtain here, with only assuring you that I am,

DEAR SIR,

Your most Obedient,

Humble Servant,

J. MORRICE.

LECTURES

and Complains in our Streets, which I hope the Almighty will soon avert and turn into songs of Joy and Thanksgiving) that I am sure you will excuse my drawing the Curtain here, with only saying you that I am,

Yours most Obedient

Humble Servant,

J. MORRICE.

